Matan Vilnai, Israeli Deputy Defence Minister, threatened the people of Gaza with a 'holocaust' (29 February 2008).

Nobel peace laureate Archbishop Desmond Tutu called Israel's blockade of the Gaza Strip an "abomination".

"And because I know what it's like, I feel I have a duty and a responsibility to fight the injustices that happen to other people. I can't do everything, and there are problems all over the world, but I decided that the Israeli government's treatment of the Palestinian people is an issue I am going to protest against, and I will try to do whatever I can."
